AMERICANS IN POWERS WATCH GREAT BRITAIN NEXT MOVE BY RUSSIA

By SIDNEY B. CAVE.

London, Jan. 31.—Word is being quietly passed to Americans that the crisis in acute between Germany and the United States, and that breaking of diplomatic relations between those two countries will result in another great submarine campaign by U-boats that will make in significant the first attack, which resulted in the sinking of several transatlantic liners and scores of smaller vessels.

Whence came the warning to Americans no one professes to know. It certainly was not issued by the American embassy. Nevertheless, citizens of the United States have been advised to leave if they wish to escape the peril of attacks on the high seas.

Some corroboration to the rumor of an impending break between Washington and Berlin was given today by the Daily Express, which printed a dispatch from its correspondent in London, in which he gave the Frankfurter Zeitung an authority for a statement that Germany had transmitted its final reply to the American note to Washington, that Germany in this reply refused to discuss the sinking of the Lusitania and that it will make no concessions.

This information was not confirmed by other sources up to noon today. Indeed, on the contrary, Berlin advised that there was no change in the attitude of a settlement of the American note. Nevertheless the Americans in London were warning as authentic and made their preparations accordingly.

ACCUSED BROTHERS DRAHT PLOT DEAL

Deadly Liquid Poured Through Letter Slot, Filling the House with Fumes; Four Are Overcome

An amazing attempt to kill a whole family by pouring through the letter slot acids which generated noxious gas came to light this afternoon in Malden.

Henry Wischusen, his wife, his daughter Ethel and his son, Henry, Jr., were overcome by the gases; and a doctor who worked over them for two hours in the work of resuscitation, also suffered effects.

BLACK HAND THREATS. Black Hand letters, which Wischusen had received, furnish the police with their only indication as to the responsibility for the crime.

Wischusen and his family went yesterday to attend the day of his mother in Malden and live at No. 13 O'Brien street. His mother is Mrs. Lavinia Wischusen.

The family returned to the Malden home at 3:30 Sunday night and were in one of the front rooms of the house when they detected a peculiar odor.

A moment later, at about 9 o'clock, the little boy, two and a half years old, suddenly fainted.

Mr. Wischusen became alarmed and telephoned for a physician. He had scarcely left the phone when the daughter, Ethel, also collapsed.

Wischusen at once telephoned another doctor, a hurry call. Mrs. Wischusen wanted to revive the two children. But she began to feel weak and after a little time she also fainted.

WISCHUSEN CALL FOR POLICE. Wischusen himself began to feel the effects. He worked frantically over his wife, without success, and when he felt his own collapse coming he snatched the telephone and sent an emergency call to the police.

The police responded in the minutes. They were unable to get any answer when they rang the doorbell, and so they broke in the door.

They found Mr. and Mrs. Wischusen and the two children unconscious. They were lastly summoned. One of them remarked:

"There's mighty funny smell here. Maybe that has something to do with it," the police suggested.

How Relatives of Mohr Regard Accused Widow

I do know Mrs. Mohr. Thank God, I am pleased to have her for my sister. Mrs. Mohr told me she prayed every night for peace and that she might be reconciled to her husband. She spoke of reconciliation with the doctor always while there, and told me often that she loved her husband—Mrs. Ella Nyra Hogan, sister of Dr. Mohr.

Mrs. Mohr came to me and said: "Uncle Gus, if you can come to Providence and bring about a reconciliation, I'll forgive the doctor for everything. I love the doctor above all else. I'll pay all your expenses or I'll do anything in the world to win him back—Gustav D. Mohr, brother of Dr. Mohr.

Mrs. Mohr always expressed love and affection for the doctor. She always looked forward to a reconciliation.—Mrs. Ella C. Bradley, former office girl for Dr. Mohr.

'GAVE WOMAN'S DEFENCE,' SAYS DOROTHY DIX

By DOROTHY DIX.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 31.—This week will be the crucial one in Mrs. Mohr's fate. By the end of the week she will be able to master up in her own behalf will be in. Then will come the testimony from the states.

Then the short, quick trial of the negro lady who are accused of being her accomplices, and sit like a statue black shadow of tragedy a few feet away from her, and then there will be much oratory, for three of the lawyers in the case are spellbinders.

After which the verdict.

LIKE A LABYRINTH

What that verdict will be one is not even permitted to guess. Such matters are in the lap of the gods, but if the jury can even follow the threads of this involved case, and untangle them and trace to each hand the blood-red strand that belongs to it, and determine what was the woman's part in the crime and what the part of each of the colored boys, then, indeed, it is a large order.

Adjoining the main theatre on Stephen street is an eight-story building which goes with the opera house. This building, covering about 1,000 square feet, contains various accessories and machinery for the production of stage effects, such as an unique studio for scene painting on a large scale, workshop for manufacture of various stage accessories, as well as dressing rooms for large chorus.

THE TRANSFER OF THE OPERA HOUSE real estate will in no way be any advantage to the city. Here is where the opera house, or the Metropolitan Opera, would have been located.

The parcel of land opposite the theatre, which is owned by the city, and is about 10,000 square feet and is valued by the assessors for street frontage at $2,000.

The Park Riding School on Lincoln street is the only thing of the sort open to public use on the Back Bay. It covers about three acres of land, and is a four-story stable building, with a four-story riding school, and a large open riding school, and a large open riding school, and a large open riding school.

It is under lease for several years.

BROTHER ADVISED IN NOTE TO CLOSE HIS HOME TO HER

Providence, Jan. 31.—Poolroom bookmakers of Providence today were giving odds 2 to 1 on the acquittal of Mrs. Elizabeth Frances Mohr and finding many takers. Waiters, race track hangers-on and cigar stand habitués were wagering their money freely on the fate of the "widow with the iron nerves."

Providence, Jan. 31.—Dr. C. Franklin Mohr declared that his wife "is a good and never will be, and the children she claims are not my own," in a letter to his brother, Gustav D. Mohr, who identified the letter on the stand today.

"I hear Mrs. Mohr is coming down in about a week, and has part of her fare paid," the epistle concluded. "You can do as you like about it, but she is a good and never will be. I don't want to go into dirty details, but you had better inform her that she is not welcome. The children that he did welcome the woman, and that she remained at his home in McEwenville for some time. He said that if the doctor had lived three weeks longer he would have seen him and attempted to bring about a reconciliation.

"Uncle Gus, if you can come to Providence and bring about a reconciliation I'll forgive the doctor for everything. I love the doctor above all else. I'll pay all your expenses, or I'll do anything in the world to win him back."

This statement was made by Mrs. Mohr to her brother-in-law, according to his testimony, which substantiated that of his sister, Mrs. Ella Nyra Hogan.

Mrs. Hogan caused a stir in court when in answer to a question as to whether or not she knew Mrs. Mohr she replied:

"I do. Thank God, I am pleased to have her for my sister."

Mrs. Mohr wept bitterly when Mrs. Hogan testified that Mrs. Mohr always expressed her love and affection for the doctor, and looked forward to a reconciliation.

The witness said that the doctor's bank account stood in the name of Mrs. Mohr in 1914, and that Dr. Mohr never repudiated the children, but had his son insured.

Mrs. Hogan, who is a sweet-faced, motherly little woman, made a strong and convincing case for her sister.

Panic in Crash on Liner Averted by Musicians

By International News Service.

Liverpool, Jan. 31.—Merrill dancers played by the musicians of the liner Philadelphia prevented a panic on the American vessel when it was seriously damaged in a collision with the English sailing ship, Ben Lue, Saturday night. There was a rush for the decks when the crash came, but the ship's band immediately struck up a waltz, and the calm words from the officers subdued the excited passengers.

SIMON SWIG ON STAND GIVES DETAILS OF CAMPAIGN

Representative Simon Swig was called as a witness against himself today when Judges Fox, Jenney and McLaughlin in the Superior Court opened hearings on the charges that Swig spent or that there was spent in Swig's behalf in the late campaign more than the $100 limit prescribed by the Corrupt Practices Act.

Swig admitted that more than $100 was received and spent in his behalf, but he said he did not know that the time he had spent in the election campaign was for the purpose of securing his election. He said contributions of $100 from former Governor Fox, Judge Fox, Judge P. French, and of smaller amounts had been received of which he did not learn till after he died his wife.

The statute says the money must be spent with the knowledge and consent of the candidate, before the name can be laid at his door. The judges when they have heard the case will make recommendations to the Superior Court.

Bernard Grass, director of the Tremont Trust Company, of which Swig was vice-president, was the first witness to be called. He gave a $10 check in the Swig Campaign Committee, which was cashed with the endorsement of the committee and of Swig.

Then three petitioners who ask Swig to be reinstated called him to the stand. Swig testified that the affidavits of receipts and expenses which I filed were true to the best of my knowledge and belief at the time I filed them.

"When I filed these affidavits, I believed them to be true," Swig testified. "I have since learned that they were not true, but I did not know that at the time I filed them."

"I did not know at that time that Mr. ex-Governor Fox had contributed the check for $100 to my fund. I did not learn this fact till after this blackballing scheme started."

"I have not thanked Mr. Fox for that check, nor have I authorized anyone else to thank him for me."

"As P. French, president of the Tremont Trust Company, contributed $25 to my campaign, but I did not know this at the time I filed my affidavits."

"I contributed $10 in the Republican State Committee, but I did not intend any of this sum, above what I spent in my behalf."

"There were many contributions of $10 and $25, I have since learned that they were not received by me. Not more than the $100 limit was spent with my consent or authorization in my campaign."

Swig testified that he had no knowledge of the fact that the committee had received more than $100 in contributions.

THE VALUE OF TRUTH

Truth in business is just as important as truth in everyday life. Truth is the foundation of all good-will and builds a reliability that will not be wrecked by the competition.

For forty years people have learned to rely upon the advertised words of Scott's Emulsion, because they are unimpaired, untingered, and unadorned. A lie would be a remedy of real and actual worth.

The popularity of Scott's Emulsion is constantly increasing, because it guarantees pure cod liver oil with glycerine and hypophosphites to build strength, improve the blood and strengthen the lungs. It is free from all irritating and poisonous food-tonic, truthfully advertised.

GOM HAM AGAINST FIGHT

Even if Willard-Moran Match Is Made, Authorities Will Hardly Allow It to Take Place.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Even if the contemplated Willard-Moran boxing match is made for New York, it is extremely doubtful if the authorities will allow it to take place.

Frank Moran, heavy-weight champion, is not in a position to make a fight with the promoters, he says.

It is a long time since the boxing commission has been in a position to make a fight with the promoters, he says.

Many of the elements of New York have expressed themselves as being against the match, and undoubtedly, if the men are again in a position to make a fight, there will be no question as to the result.

When that boxing match which has been scheduled between Jack Willard and Frank Moran was published on one day, a momentary thought to that "Gom Ham" fight.

It is possible that under these conditions the champion will be able to back out of the fight, but it is not certain.

Waterville, Me., Jan. 21.—Fred Lake of Arlington, Mass., former manager of the Red Sox and the Braves, has signed to coach the Colby College baseball squad and will assume his new duties April 10.

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 21.—The fate of the five Yale athletes who were debarred from further intercollegiate competition for playing Summer baseball at Quogue, L. I., last year was decided today by the board of trustees with the name of the next football coach, will be made public some time this week.

The athletes who were debarred are William Milburn, captain of the basketball team; Harry Lettore, the basketball shortstop and fullback of the 1916 eleven; Billy Keaton, an outfielder and fullback of some ability; Spencer Pomplsey and R. H. Wainwright.

A number of things here it seems that the chances are that the Yale baseball team will in all probability have the services of all players except Milburn.

The matter was considered by representatives of the board of trustees and Yale last week, and from the personnel of the body which reviewed the case it was explicitly expected that the ban will be lifted.

Fall contains nine games, with Susquehanna, Maine, Illinois, Rhode Island State, Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, Yale, Rochester, Syracuse and Brown its foes. The season will open September 30 and close with the Brown game, Thanksgiving Day.

CHILDREN WIN 'OLD IRONSIDES' FACTORY

'Old Ironsides' is saved.
Secretary of the Navy Daniels has announced to Congressmen Gallivan that the gallant old vessel now lying at the Charlestown Navy Yard is not to be allowed to rot.

The school children of New England, through the AMERICAN, have won a splendid victory, for it was their fight in the AMERICAN that aroused the Secretary of the Navy to action.

Congressman Gallivan last night sent this word to the AMERICAN: Secretary Daniels tells me that it is by chance my bill providing $150,000 for repairs to 'Old Ironsides' does not go through, he will find some way under the general law to prevent the frigate from going to pieces.

Some repairs would be made in an effort to save the ship for the public, and especially for the school children.

It was the AMERICAN that first drew public attention with vigor to the fact that the old vessel was rotting away and would shortly have to be destroyed unless steps were taken to preserve her hull.

The school children were enlisted in the fight. They were asked to suggest plans by which the old vessel could be saved.

Thousands of these suggestions have been received. They came by every mail.

The children responded with tremendous enthusiasm to the appeal and showed that they believed firmly that the old vessel that has filled so gallant a role in our country's history was deserving of a better fate than the junk pile.

A prize of $5 was offered by the AMERICAN for the best suggestion of a plan to save 'Old Ironsides.' The name of the winner of this prize will be announced in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

'Ironsides' Defied All in 'Pirate' Days
CHAPTER VII
The war with Tripoli was brought about as the result of increased demands by the Barbary States for American tribute.

Pirates, bearing the more dignified name of "corsairs," infested the Mediterranean ocean and traversed a large part of the Atlantic.

These dangerous sea wolves were under the protection of Algiers, Tripoli, Tunis and other North African states.

No foreign merchantmen were safe unless their governments had sent valuable presents in money, ships and armaments to the various Barbary potentates.

At one time all the first class nations were buying protection with definite tribute money. But immunity for England, France, Italy and other countries upon the new nation across the Atlantic, which was looked upon as utterly helpless.

United States merchantmen were in continual danger of being seized and their crews being sold into slavery.

PAID TRIBUTE TO PIRATES.
The United States sent ships, money and guns as presents to pacify the demands of pirate governments. Nearly one million dollars was voted by Congress for this purpose, and in addition a beautiful new frigate was built for the day of Algiers and sent to him as a present, manned with American sailors, most of whom had at one time been captives under the corsairs.

The ship also carried as part of its cargo twenty-five barrels of American dollars.

But gifts pleased the piratical potentates, but failed to pacify all of them, especially where presents were not as large in value as those given to others.

The day of Tripoli felt especially grieved because he had not been favored with sums of money equal to those received by the day of Algiers.

He finally wrote to the United States a pleasant diplomatic letter which spent for itself a time when it was thought the new country across the water had no navy.

The day, in his anxiety to retain the friendship of America, would fleet sent to Tripoli.

President of United States of America.

After having cultivated the branches of our good will and paved the way for a solid understanding and perfect friendship, which we wish may continue forever, we make known that the object and contents of the letter is that Tripoli may be on the same footing with you as other Barbary States; and in order to further strengthen the bond of friendship and understanding—Blessed be God.

But, our sincere friend, would wish your expressions were followed by deeds and not by empty words. You will, therefore, endeavor to satisfy us by a good manner of proceeding.

But if only flattering words are meant without performance every one will act at his final consequence. As a delay on your part cannot but be prejudicial to your interests.

Finally, after a number of such humiliating notes had been received, among which was one from the day of Tunis asking for forty cannon, that too much dwell in peace and friendship with the United States, the government decided to send a navy to a nation with honor to maintain.

The response, therefore, was sent to the form of a small fleet, headed by the Constitution, with Commodore Dewey as its commander.
